"She was born to be a mom," a source says of Underwood (in Nashville June 10).

CARRIE UNDERWOOD BACK AFTER BABY!

Maternity leave is over! Just four months after welcoming son Isaiah, Carrie Underwood made her first red carpet appearance at the CMT Music Awards June 10. "I was focusing on him and my motherhood role," the country superstar, married to pro hockey player Mike Fisher, told Us. "There's just a whole other person to think about!" And he's always on her mind. While collecting her 11th CMT award, the 32-year-old, clad in a Thomas Wylde mini-dress, praised her son: "He has already inspired me."

MAMA'S BOY Now working on a new album near Nashville, Underwood revealed she's been writing about Isaiah. "I didn't want to . . . have anything be cheesy," she told USA Today June 10. "It just kind of happened." Her postbaby body took a bit more effort: Thanks to thrice-weekly workouts with trainer Erin Oprea, the strict vegan is back in her prebaby jeans. "She has a clean lifestyle," says a close source. "She's living the life she always dreamed of!"

"They have my heart," Underwood posted of her husband's May 15 snap.

Nanny to the Stars?

Britney Spears wants to take direction from Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie. "I'd like to become their nanny," the singer, 33, revealed on a U.K. morning show June 12. "That sounds fun!" (Pitt, 51, and Jolie, 40, have Maddox, 13, Pax, 11, Zahara, 10, Shiloh, 9, and twins Knox and Vivienne, 6.) One challenge of the role: keeping calm around Pitt, who she met at a 2003 event. "I kind of lost my mind," the mom of Preston, 9, and Jayden, 8, said. "I was so uncool. . . . I got a picture and an autograph!"

GOOD GRIEF

A picture of poor taste? Jackie Siegel, ostentatious Queen of Versailles star and wife of a time-share tycoon, snapped pics of her daughter Victoria's casket and posed for selfies before the teen's June 9 funeral. (The 18-year-old was found unresponsive in their Florida mansion June 6.) A family rep defended the 49-year-old's bizarre actions to Us: "People deal with grief differently. . . . I can tell you that she has cried."

Don't Quit Your Day Job!

When it comes to politics, these stars need to concede

LINDSAY LOHAN

"I'm not afraid of going [to Iraq]," the star, 28, said of wanting to visit U.S. troops in 2006. "My security guard is going to take me to a gun range. . . . I'm going to start taking shooting lessons."

JUSTIN BIEBER

After declaring his homeland, Canada, "the best country in the world" in 2011, the pop star, 21, admitted, "I'm not sure about [political] parties, but whatever they have in Korea, that's bad."

NICOLE 'SNOOKI' POLIZZI

The reality star, 27, swore her allegiance in 2010: "[John] McCain would never put a 10 percent tax on tanning [like President Barack Obama did], because he's pale."

BROOKE HOGAN

Although she's "not that much into voting," Hulk Hogan's daughter, 27, has said she's against a female president because "women deal with a lot of emotions and menopause and PMS and stuff."

VINCE VAUGHN

The actor, 45, said in the July issue of British GQ that he supports guns in schools. "[Mass shootings have] only happened in places that don't allow guns. . . . Banning guns is like banning forks in an attempt to stop making people fat."

Olivia Newton-John

25 Things You Don't Know About Me

Oh, Sandy! The Aussie, 66, fills Us in

1. I come from a family of academics.
2. My grandfather [Max Born] won a Nobel Prize.
3. I own the award-winning Gaia spa in Australia.
4. At 15, I won a talent competition that launched my career.
5. I was part of a '60s double act, Pat & Olivia.
6. I love dark chocolate with chili!

7. I don't like saffron.

8. I married "Amazon John" Easterling [63] on a mountaintop in Peru.
9. I collect fresh eggs daily to make breakfast for him.
10. Before accepting the role of Sandy in Grease, I insisted on doing a screen test with John Travolta.
11. I once had nine dogs, six horses and a bunch of cats.

12. I have planted more than 10 million trees in Australia.

13. I walked more than 120 miles on the Great Wall of China.
14. I was the first U.N. Goodwill Ambassador for the Environment.
15. Nina Simone and Dionne Warwick were my big musical influences.
16. I love to laugh.
17. I also love to cook.
18. I have to spend at least an hour every day outside.

19. I broke my tailbone while roller-skating for Xanadu.

20. I'm terrified of heights.
21. I need flowers around me, especially white lilies.
22. I plan to auction my leather ensemble from Grease to raise money for my cancer center.
23. I try to protect animals!
24. My daughter, Chloe [29], is an amazing singer.
25. The first time my husband saw Grease was on John Travolta's plane.

Her resident show, Summer Nights, is on now at Las Vegas' Flamingo.

WHAT'S IN MY BAG?

Superstar on the go! Molly Shannon, 50, unpacks her essentials

I always throw a banana in my purse, because I love them!" says the star of Me and Earl and the Dying Girl (out now). "My doctor said, 'You're low on potassium. You need to eat more bananas.' I was like, 'What? That's all I eat!'" The mom of Stella, 11, and Nolan, 10 (with artist husband Fritz Chesnut, 42), peels open her Giorgio Armani purse for Us.

PHONE A FRIEND

"When people start talking about technical things, I get really overwhelmed. So I have a business card for this guy at T-Mobile who helps me. He's so calm and explains things."

BUZZWORTHY BALM

"My kids and I did the Bee Experience at the Carmel Valley Ranch, and it was incredible! I got this great lotion from the bees called Carmel Bee. You can put it on your elbows and your knees."

MILE-HIGH MEDICINE

"I have vitamins from my acupuncturist that I take when I fly that prevent me from getting a cold. Acupuncture is amazing. I love it!"

DON'T SUGARCOAT IT

"I'm not really a candy person at all. But I do like Halls cough drops as a sweet treat once in a while."

DO THE MATH

"We're taking a trip to Northern California and I plan on having the kids practice their multiplication tables in the car, so I have a sheet with me."

WHAT THE STARS SAID THIS WEEK

"I am literally open to every single thing that is consenting and doesn't involve an animal."

On her sexual preferences,

MILEY CYRUS

"Everybody says, 'What do you have to do to look like you?' I say, 'Work out for 30 years.'"

On the former NFL player's buff physique,

TERRY CREWS

"He was like, 'If you could go out to lunch with anybody, who would it be?' . . . I was like, 'Mark Twain,' and he was like, 'It has to be somebody real.'"

Describing her worst date,

AMY SCHUMER

"I find it disgusting but maybe a compliment that I'm being accused of getting lipo done."

On rumors that she had surgery to help lose weight,

KHLOÉ KARDASHIAN

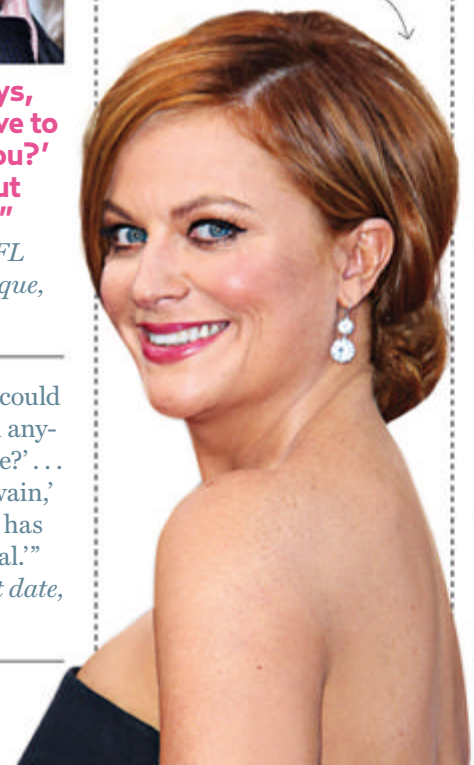
"Guys are lazy. They use what's in front of them. He has his own toothbrush, of course, and in an emergency, then we'll share."

On fiancé Justin Theroux borrowing her toiletries,

JENNIFER ANISTON

"If you're happy all the time, you're usually a sociopath."

AMY POEHLER



"In the beginning, we were going to be the Spicy Girls, but then we realized there was a porn site called the Spicy Girls."

On choosing a name for the Spice Girls,

VICTORIA BECKHAM

"Most people want to ask about my size and how brave I am. I'm like, 'I'm not brave. I'm just not really skinny.'"

On being a size 10,

MINDY KALING

"Being 'empowered' is not the same as being a 'bitch.'"

ARIANA GRANDE

"What if this is the only thing that survives in the time capsule?"

On his disdain for Kim Kardashian's book Selfish, a collection of selfies,

TIM GUNN

"Leave it for the samurai."

Hollywood MOMS

Jennie's Girl Power

"We cram a lot into weekends," DIY fan Jennie Garth says of fixing up her Hollywood Hills home with daughters Luca, 18, Lola, 12, and Fiona, 8 (dad is ex Peter Facinelli, 41). "We're replacing the lawn with AstroTurf to save water." This summer, the crew has a special project: her wedding to actor Dave Abrams. The actress, 43, gives Us the dirt.

Q: Three girls must keep you busy!
It's a lot of fun and a lot of crazy, for sure. Luca wants to go into theater, so she's very into reading plays. Lola loves YouTube girls like Bethany Mota and she's on the volleyball team. And Fiona is into everything — gymnastics, soccer — and she loves to read.

Q: What's your biggest challenge?
Just keeping them close and getting them talking. They want to hide out in their rooms and go on the internet.

Q: Is Luca off to college this fall?
She got accepted in New York. She's going to be moving across the country. We've got to apartment-hunt for her!

Q: How are the girls pitching in on wedding planning?
They definitely have opinions on who's wearing what color and style. But they love the dress I'm having made!

Setting a Good Example

Minnie Driver's son, Henry, is on Team Green. With California facing a water shortage, the 6-year-old conserves every precious drop. "We've been saving shower water," the About a Boy star, 45, tells Us. "You basically stand in a bucket. Henry loves lugging the water out in his watering can for the garden. We're trying to be good!"

Julie's Boys Just Can't Let Go

"They sleep like pharaohs, with all their precious items, everything they've ever owned," Julie Bowen, 45, jokes of Oliver, 8 (above, at a June 6 Pottery Barn Kids event), and twins John and Gustav, 6, with husband Scott Phillips. The Modern Family star isn't complaining, though: "Listen, I just don't want the stuff all over the floor."

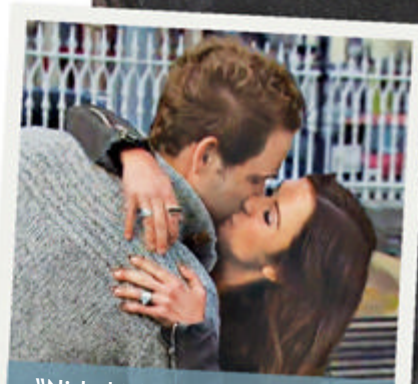
KAITLYN & NICK

Sex Before the Suite

Bristowe loves one suitor but sleeps with another

Kaitlyn Bristowe and Nick Viall chose to forgo their individual rooms before the fantasy suite. On the June 22 episode of The Bachelorette, Bristowe — who professed her love to trainer Shawn Booth a week earlier — invites the software exec, 34, back to her Dublin hotel. There, the still-miked pair close the door on producers. "Kaitlyn says, 'Don't come knocking,'" says a series insider. "Nick whispers that he wants to know all of her." Cue a symphony of moans. The morning after, "she doesn't regret it," says the source. "But she feels guilty about hurting the guys." After Bristowe, 29, gives the group date rose to another suitor, Booth, 29, confronts her. "She thinks he found out she slept with Nick," says a second source. He doesn't learn the naked truth until weeks later, says the source, and he's devastated: "He hates sharing Kaitlyn."



"Nick thinks they're rock solid," a source says of the pair.

"When Kaitlyn is with Nick, she forgets there are other guys involved," says the insider of the ABC star (June 4 near L.A.).

EMILY & NORMAN

Secret Show Romance!

Dawn of a Dead relationship: Emily Kinney, 29, and Norman Reedus, 46, who met on AMC's zombie thriller The Walking Dead, are seeing each other, sources tell Hot Stuff. "They had a connection early on in the show," says a source close to the duo, "but the romance developed recently." After Kinney's character, Beth, was shockingly killed off in 2014, she and Reedus, who plays zombie hunter Daryl, stayed in touch through texts and appearances at fan conventions. More recently, the dad of 15-year-old Mingus (with model Helena Christensen) cheered on the singer-songwriter at her May 21 concert in Decatur, Georgia. Says the source, "He was one of the first to support her at her concerts when she was still on the show."

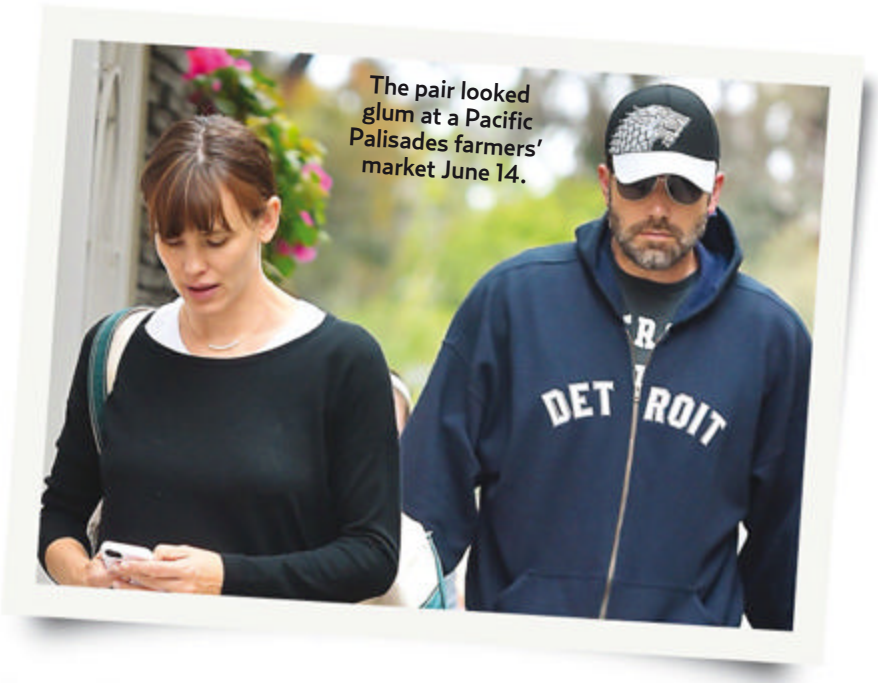
"I don't like to argue," Garner (with Affleck in 2014) has said.

FIGHTING for THEIR MARRIAGE

After nearly 10 years and three kids together, Ben Affleck and wife Jennifer Garner are on the brink of splitting BY ERIC ANDERSSON



The pair looked glum at a Pacific Palisades farmers' market June 14.

Playing with puppies on a sunny Sunday afternoon might seem like an idyllic family outing. But on a May 24 trip to a pop-up shelter in L.A.'s Pacific Palisades, Jennifer Garner had to deal with two disappointed kids and one surly husband. Ben Affleck, says a witness, scowled as wife Garner encouraged daughters Violet and Seraphina to play with a litter of eight golden retrievers. And when the girls (brother Samuel, 3, wasn't with them) learned that their preferred pup had already been adopted, Affleck barked at the female volunteer. "Ben was really short with her, like, 'Yeah, whatever,'" says the witness. Once the family had settled on a second retriever, Garner left on her own, leaving her husband behind with the kids. Says the witness, "Ben and Jen did not look happy."

In fact, they're not. As the couple approach their 10th wedding anniversary, they've set off a round of tabloid divorce speculation by spending weeks apart — and appearing miserable when they are together. Now, insiders admit the end may be near. "Where there's smoke, there's fire," says a source close to the couple. "The marriage is in trouble." The insiders point the finger squarely at Affleck. "Ben has issues with addiction and gambling," continues the source, adding that the blackjack aficionado, who went to rehab in 2001 for alcohol dependency, "goes to Vegas for days at a time." When he's not partying, the 42-year-old is working. At the couple's $17.5 million home in Pacific Palisades, "Ben is hardly around," says a source who has worked with Garner and Affleck. "He comes home for a little, and then has to jet off to another project." If it weren't for Violet, 9, Seraphina, 6, and Samuel, Garner, 43, would have walked away already, says the source. Instead, the couple have turned to therapy, both together and separately, to help mend their marriage. "They are trying to work it out for the kids' sake," says the insider. "But things are not at all peaches and cream with them."

SEPARATE LIVES

The relationship these days is more bitter than sweet. Affleck has taken to crashing at the Hotel Bel-Air, rather than spending nights at home. Explains the source, "He stays there whenever he and Jen are having problems." Away from his wife's watchful eye, he downs cocktails at the bar. "There's no need to sugarcoat it," says the insider. "Ben is drinking again."

Which is why Garner worries when he heads out of town. "He gets into trouble on his own," says the Garner source. Just last year, Affleck was banned from playing blackjack at the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas after he was accused of counting cards. (TMZ reported he'd also been gambling in a Detroit casino in September.) "Jen was embarrassed and pissed off," says the source close to the couple. "She feels like she gives him an inch and he takes a mile."

He's also been repeatedly gone because of film shoots. Over the past 18 months, the actor-director — who's transformed himself from Gigli punch line to in-demand, multihyphenate A-lister — filmed three movies. There was Gone Girl in Missouri for five weeks; Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice in Detroit and Chicago over seven months; and in January, The Accountant in Atlanta for two months. Garner put a positive spin on the situation in March. "He's been superbusy," Garner told Us. "I'm superhappy for him. So I chose to stay home and just said, 'Go for it, babe. Do it all.'" Her sacrifices, Affleck told Playboy in 2014, "allowed me to have a stable home life while accomplishing my professional goals."

Friends say that work/home-life balance is hardly so neat. "Ben constantly thinks about work," says a Garner pal. "He's tough to be married to because he's a workaholic." Though Affleck regularly returned home at Garner's behest — she "made plans for him to travel home most weekends" during The Accountant, says a source — long stretches apart added strain. Says the Garner source, "She doesn't trust him."

With resentment building on both sides, the mood at home has been frosty at best. "Jen left to go work out one day, and Ben actually sighed with relief and became instantly more at ease," says an Affleck insider who has seen the couple interact. "They speak in short, direct sentences to each other. They can be passive-aggressive and dismissive. The only things they talk about are the kids' schedules or their own schedules."

ROUGH START

A Garner source says the pair "have had problems from the very beginning." Friends since meeting on the Hawaii set of Pearl Harbor in 2000, they ultimately began dating in 2004 while filming the flop Elektra. (Both Affleck and Garner were coming off high-profile breakups, from Jennifer Lopez and Michael Vartan, respectively.) Within a year, Garner, then 33, and Affleck, then 32, eloped in Turks and Caicos and were expecting. "We were babies," Garner told October's InStyle. "It happened so fast."

Garner, a mild-mannered West Virginia native, and Affleck, a quick-witted Bostonian, soon butted heads. "They didn't see eye to eye on things," according to an Affleck source. "Everything was a battle." What they fought about then is what they fight about now: Affleck's smoking, gambling, drinking and late-night carousing. "He had so many vices that they struggled with," says the source. "But Jen has been patient."

Over the years, her patience ran out. "In their dynamic, Jen is the dominating force, which is hard for Ben to deal with," says an Affleck source. "I've heard her being dismissive of him." (In front of the children, however, they're nothing but cordial. "The kids don't know anything," says the Garner source. "Ben and Jen don't let on to their problems at all.")

The actress' efforts to help tame his demons grated on the two-time Oscar winner. "He likes hanging out with the guys, he likes having a beer and he likes to play some card

OCTOBER 2011

"You have to just hang in there while you figure it out — and have a lot of patience for each other," Garner (pregnant with Samuel, above) has said of parenting.

MAY 2013

"I would have said, 'Thank you to my wife. Our marriage is a gift!'" Garner jokes on Saturday Night Live about Affleck's Oscar gaffe.

2014

Sweet revenge! When Garner drenches him for an ice-bucket challenge clip to raise awareness of ALS, Affleck playfully pulls her into the pool.

HOME SWEET HOMES

What he's missing: While Ben's away, Jen rules the roosts games," says a close Affleck source. "Jen would like it if he never did those things, but that's who he is." (A rep for Affleck declined to comment on this story; Garner's rep could not be reached.)

The couple are the first to admit their marriage is hardly rom-com material. Garner has noted that being married takes "effort," while Affleck memorably called their union "work" in front of his wife (and 40 million viewers) as he accepted his 2013 Best Picture Oscar for Argo. With a grinning Garner by his side, he defended his faux pas months later on Saturday Night Live: "Some uncharitable souls on the internet took that to mean our marriage is some kind of manual labor. That's not it. You define what's important to you by what you dedicate your time to."

KIDS FIRST

The parents of Violet, Sera (as her parents call her) and Samuel are now deciding if their marriage can be saved. "Splitting up is Jennifer's worst nightmare for their children. Her biggest desire has always been to keep the family together," according to the Garner source. Affleck and Garner "have been in therapy for years. They each go separately, and they also go together," the source continues. "When things are rough, they go more often."

They may not have the opportunity for so much introspection this summer. Garner has been traveling back and forth to Montreal to film the comedy Nine Lives with Kevin Spacey. After that, a source says, Affleck is set to direct his next project, the drama Live by Night, on location on the East Coast in August.

Friends of the pair are wary that Affleck and Garner will make it through the latest troubles. "Jen has always been by Ben's side and fought the urge to throw her hands up and walk away," says the Garner source. "But there's only so much she can do. There comes a point where she just has to take care of herself and the children." US

REASON to Stay

Garner may have an incentive to hold on past her 10th wedding anniversary. "In California, if a marriage lasts less than 10 years, judges often award spousal support for half the length of the marriage," explains Jessica Levinson, professor of law at Loyola Law School L.A. If the pair stay together past June 29, Garner could seek a bigger share of Affleck's reported $75 million: "Judges can award alimony for as long as it's needed."

WNBA war: The day after Johnson reveals she's pregnant, Griner files for an annulment, citing fraud

BY KEVIN O'LEARY

Brittney Griner has opened up to ESPN about coming out as a lesbian and enduring the gender gap in professional basketball players' salaries. But on June 8, a new interview topic sent the WNBA superstar into tears. Discussing the annulment papers she filed on June 5, one day after her wife of 28 days, fellow hoops pro Glory Johnson, announced she was pregnant, an emotional Griner, 24, called the marriage "a huge mistake. . . . I knew I shouldn't have went through with it."

Now the two are going head to head in a battle of she said, she said. Griner, the Phoenix Mercury's center, claims she has no biological connection to the baby and does not know when Johnson became pregnant. Tulsa Shock forward Johnson, also 24, countered in a June 15 email to Us that "Brittney was a willing participant, consenting and signing all the necessary documents" for Johnson's in vitro fertilization with her own egg and donor sperm. And though Johnson told TMZ Sports she was "blindsided" by the filing, Griner asserts that she has June 3 texts proving the two agreed to split.

BAD CALLS

The romance between the rival players once seemed like a slam dunk. Johnson, who as recently as May has stated she's "not a lesbian," fell for the 6-foot-8 phenom after they hit it off at a postgame gathering in June 2014. "It was weird, but it was so comfortable," Johnson told The New York Times in May. Two months later, Griner and the 6-foot-3 University of Tennessee alum announced their engagement on Instagram, and committed to appear on a January episode of TLC's Say Yes to the Dress: Atlanta. "Being on a court, I know exactly what I'm doing," an affable Griner mused on the show. "Being on a bridal floor, not so much!"

But cracks began to show April 22, when both were arrested following a fight in their Goodyear, Arizona, home. After an all-day argument, the altercation turned physical, and Johnson's visiting sister, Judy, dialed 911. "WE'RE OK... ," Johnson Instagrammed two days later. "#NobodysPerfect." (Griner pleaded guilty to misdemeanor disorderly conduct and has begun 26 weeks of domestic violence classes; Johnson pleaded not guilty and her case was dismissed. The league suspended each woman for seven games.)

While Griner says she tried to call off the May nuptials — "Sometimes you feel pressured into things," the Baylor graduate told ESPN — Johnson insists to Us that they "both willfully and joyfully walked down the aisle."

If Griner fights paying child support, it could set a precedent in the state for same-sex couples. "This is going to come down to whether the court will hold Ms. Griner to contractual promises," says Arizona lawyer Claudia D. Work, who believes Griner's annulment chance is slim, given the public nature of their courtship.

As the soap opera unfolds, Johnson says she will focus on the baby and move to Tulsa for home-team support. Griner's game plan: "Just submerge myself in basketball." US

BINDI IRWIN

Living Dad's Legacy

Nine years after Steve Irwin's tragic death, daughter Bindi tells Us how she's making him proud

Learning from Steve (in 2005), she reflects, "was an extraordinary time."

Bindi Irwin's life is a zoo. "My neighbors are crocodiles and tigers and giraffes," the 16-year-old told Us' Ingrid Meilan June 12, calling from the Irwin family's home inside Queensland's Australia Zoo, founded by her late father, Crocodile Hunter Steve. "In the morning, my alarm clock is a chorus of lemurs yelling!" But helping mom Terri, 50, and brother Robert, 11, run the park isn't her only day job. Through Wildlife Warriors, she is continuing the animal-conservation work of her dad, who died at age 44 after a 2006 stingray attack. And now she's herding kid competitors in her Netflix show, Bindi's Bootcamp.

What do you have up your sleeve for Bindi's Bootcamp?

It's a game show with a twist! We filmed here at Australia Zoo, and the contestants are up against challenges that I face in my everyday life — from trying to create the "deadliest dinner" for different animals to figuring out which poo belongs to which creature. I wanted to inspire people in a way where they're having fun, but accidentally learning.

Terri (with her kids in 2013) fosters "unconditional love," says Bindi.

What's a typical day like when you're not zookeeping?

I do distance education [with classes online and by phone] because our conservation work has us traveling all over the place. I love hiking, paddleboarding and listening to the Veronicas.

Is it nice to change out of khakis?

I'll always feel most comfortable in khaki surrounded by animals, but it is really fun to try different styles. I'm kind of stepping away from khaki!

What would your dad say if he could see you and Robert now?

I hope he'd be proud. That's my end goal. He was like our living, breathing superhero. He was so passionate and clever. I watch Robert, and he's so much like Dad in the way that he talks and walks. It's phenomenal.

Favorite memory with Dad?

One morning when I was about 6 or 7, my dad rushed into the house, and he said, "Bindi! Robert! You have to get outside, I have a surprise for you!" So we walked out the front door and underneath our clothesline was a giant tiger. Dad had just brought a tiger into our backyard! It's moments like that I'll never forget. You never knew what to expect with Dad. He was like a living hurricane. But it was always fun and it was always an adventure.

He jokingly forbade you from dating until you were 40!

My brother has now started saying that line, which is really funny. Dad also said that if I did find someone to date that he would have to prove himself by swimming across our largest crocodile pond! And if he made it to the other side, he could go out with me. I don't think we're going to go to that extreme, but it would still certainly have to be a very tough person to date me.

What keeps the Irwins strong?

We try to surround ourselves with love and light. You have to be there for each other. As a family, we are trying to make sure everything Dad worked so hard for carries on into the future. We'll continue to expand the zoo and try to spread his message. It's a big job, but we're hoping to make Dad as proud as possible. US

"My dad was one man who changed the world," relates the 12th grader (at the Australia Zoo in January).

HALLE'S SCI-FI SAGA

Berry talks TV and extraterrestrials with Us

Halle Berry figured she'd found the perfect work-life balance. Signing on to the sci-fi series Extant last season, "I thought, I'm going to go into TV, be at home with my family," says the mom of daughter Nahla, 7 (with ex Gabriel Aubry, 39), and son Maceo, 20 months (with husband Olivier Martinez, 49). But "I didn't see my family, and I never worked harder in my life!" Now, with season 2 premiering (CBS, July 1, 10 P.M.), "I got it down," says the Oscar winner, 48 — who plays astronaut Molly Woods, mother of a robot and a half-alien. She brings Us on board.

Q: Any doubts about going into television?
More people probably see this show than have seen maybe all of my movies! . . . As artists, we want to share what we do.

Q: How did you film with a newborn?
I was doing drive-by nursings every two hours. I was in over my head — the amount of scenes we shoot in a day!

Q: Molly had a turning point in accepting her robot son last season.
He essentially blew himself up to save her life. . . . That's the burning question: Can a robot have humanity? Can they love?

Q: Do you believe in aliens?
I do believe there's something else out there. I'm not so egotistical to think that we're the only ones in this vast universe.

"I'm lucky," Berry (with Jeffrey Dean Morgan) says of her role.

Berry, who is a producer on the series, tells Us "it's nice to have some input!"

ODETTE'S HISTORY LESSON

Annable does her homework for a true tale

Odette Annable developed a shopping habit prepping for ABC's new 1960s drama The Astronaut Wives Club (Thursdays, 8 P.M.). "I was on eBay, buying all of the old Life magazines," the actress, 30, tells Us. The mom-to-be (she and husband Dave, 35, are expecting this fall) plays Trudy, the feminist in a group of seven space race–era spouses. "These women have been put in the shadows," she says. But "they're all smart, unique, incredible."

FAST FRIENDS As are her costars (including JoAnna Garcia Swisher and Yvonne Strahovski). "We really grew to love each other," she says of filming in New Orleans. Off screen, they turned thoroughly modern: "A few of us lived in the same building, so late-night pizzas and watching The Bachelor was a really big one for us!"

MILIAN'S TOUGH CHOICE

Danielle opens up about her unborn child in an Us exclusive

When Danielle Milian — Christina's younger sister and costar on E!'s Christina Milian Turned Up — had an ultrasound in March, she hoped to learn she was having a boy. Instead, she received devastating news: Her baby has omphalocele, a life-threatening birth defect where organs form outside the body. "The tech said, 'I can't see the sex . . . because I am seeing . . . intestines,'" recalls the 29-year-old mom of Naomi, 12 months (with husband Richard Dickerson, 30), and Daniel, 8 (from a past relationship). "It was hard."

A LONG ROAD It only got harder when she learned her baby's stomach, gallbladder, spleen and liver were all exposed. "I was told there's almost a 53 percent chance of mortality," she says, adding that some doctors advised a termination. Her child, who is a boy, faces several surgeries after his August birth. But Danielle tells Us she is determined to fight the rare disorder. "No matter how long he has in this world, I could not imagine taking his chance away."

STAY NEUTRAL

For timeless photos, Amal Clooney's makeup artist Charlotte Tilbury recommends taupe and rose-gold eye shadow for blondes and redheads. Brunettes fare best in dark chocolate and gold. Try Urban Decay's new Naked3 palette. ($54, sephora.com)

PUMP UP THE VOLUME

A little secret from Lauren Conrad's hairstylist Kristin Ess: Even thick locks can lose shape and photograph flat, so extensions provide those bouncy waves "on brides' Pinterest boards." (Christie Brinkley clip-ins, $49, hair2wear.com)

SMELL THE ORANGE BLOSSOMS

Dust the décolletage with scented powder, such as Viktor & Rolf's fruity Bonbon. The chest emits heat, helping the aroma emit longer than a pre-vows spritz, says Darden. ($80, saksfifthavenue.com)

UNVEIL A NEW ACCESSORY

Before the reception, add sparkle, compliments of a studded comb. Ess considered 35 options before landing on a $1,125 design for Conrad's half-updo. ($325, jenniferbehr.com)

KEEP GLOWING

Before applying makeup, pat on grape seed–oil serum. "It brightens and evens skin tone so you can wear less foundation," says Greenberg. ($79, us.caudalie.com)

TO HAVE & TO HOLD

1. Finely milled powder keeps foundation from slipping, says Nadine. ($45, charlottetilbury.com)

2. A feather puff (Nadine likes the one from Clé de Peau Beauté) spreads talc more evenly than standard sponges. ($15, shop.nordstrom.com)

3. Essentials squeeze into a beaded 4x8½–inch clutch — with shoulder chain. ($179, moynabags.com)

4. A light-up phone case is "great for touch-ups when you can't make it to a mirror," says Ess. ($45, lumeecase.com)

5. HUG ME and KISS ME mints seal the deal. ($3 for 35, xomints.com)

6. Almay's cotton swabs with makeup remover–saturated tips, notes Tilbury, can erase smudges and sharpen eyeliner. ($6 for 24, drugstore.com)

7. Nadine says Dior Addict Lip Polish in Fresh Expert "isn't goopy and adds the perfect amount of shine." ($33, sephora.com)

8. Extra bobby pins bolster an updo, says Sims. Corral 'em with an elastic! (Goody pins, $4 for 50; Goody elastics, $3 for 36, target.com)

SUNDAY 6/21

True Detective

Rachel McAdams and Colin Farrell headline an uneven second round

★★½☆

Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson are a tough act to follow. Whereas True Detective's first tale transfixed with chills, this installment, with a new cast and a new setting, plays like a bloated homage to Chinatown and other noir classics. (Fictional Vinci, California, is rife with crime bosses, corrupt politicians and shady cops.) The sharp main mystery isn't the problem: Three troubled law enforcers — love-'em-and-leave-'em Ani (Rachel McAdams), violent boozer Ray (Colin Farrell) and secretive Paul (Taylor Kitsch) — unite to investigate the gruesome murder of a land developer. Their sleuthing and character revelations, all absorbing, are frustratingly sidetracked by a superfulous story line involving Frank (Vince Vaughn), a thuggish casino operator connected to the victim. The series loses steam whenever Frank talks with his wife (a pouty Kelly Reilly) about going legit or spews advice such as, "Never do anything out of hunger, even eating." What keeps Detective cooking is the Emmy-worthy Farrell. Ray, divorced and beholden to crooks, embarks on an ambitious road to redemption by trying to solve the central crime. Farrell's performance proves memorable. Truly. (HBO, 9 P.M.)

Thorne (center) struggles to nail the moves.

SATURDAY 6/27

Perfect High

Lifetime surprises again. The network known for its guilty-pleasure flicks offers a harrowing tale of a high school dancer's spiral into drug addiction. Former Disney star Bella Thorne shocks as Amanda, a good student who becomes hooked on painkillers (then heroin!) after hurting her knee. (Her parents come off as comically clueless.) Egging her on, in disturbing scenes, are her new "cool" friends, including a crush (Israel Broussard). Their tragic story provides a graphic cautionary tale. (Lifetime, 8 P.M.)

WEDNESDAY 6/24

Mr. Robot

★★★½

Despite its odd title, this new hacker drama, more gripping than CBS's Scorpion, displays strokes of genius. Newcomer Rami Malek captivates as Elliot, a cybersecurity whiz who goes rogue to bring down the greedy and gross. (His first victim is a child-porn producer.) With his perspective clouded by drugs and paranoia, Elliot is no by-the-book hero. He's not even sure if his would-be mentor, the titular "Mr. Robot" (Christian Slater), is a figment of his imagination! Intriguing elements like these make Robot roll like a big-screen psychological thriller. (USA, 10 P.M.)

SUNDAY 6/28

Humans

The well-trod robots-taking-over premise gets a provocative reboot via this futuristic drama. After splurging on "Anita," a state-of-the-art "Synth" eerily played by Gemma Chan, harried mom Laura (Katherine Parkinson) notices glitches. Surprise: Anita is one of a rising number of machines with feelings! More than creepy, Humans hums as a meditation on human laziness (the robots clean, drive, offer sex) and loneliness. When elderly George (William Hurt) replaces his defective "son" (Game of Thrones' Will Tudor), it's heartbreaking. (AMC, 9 P.M.)

One Synth is programmed to pass out fliers.

OPENS FRIDAY 6/19

Inside Out

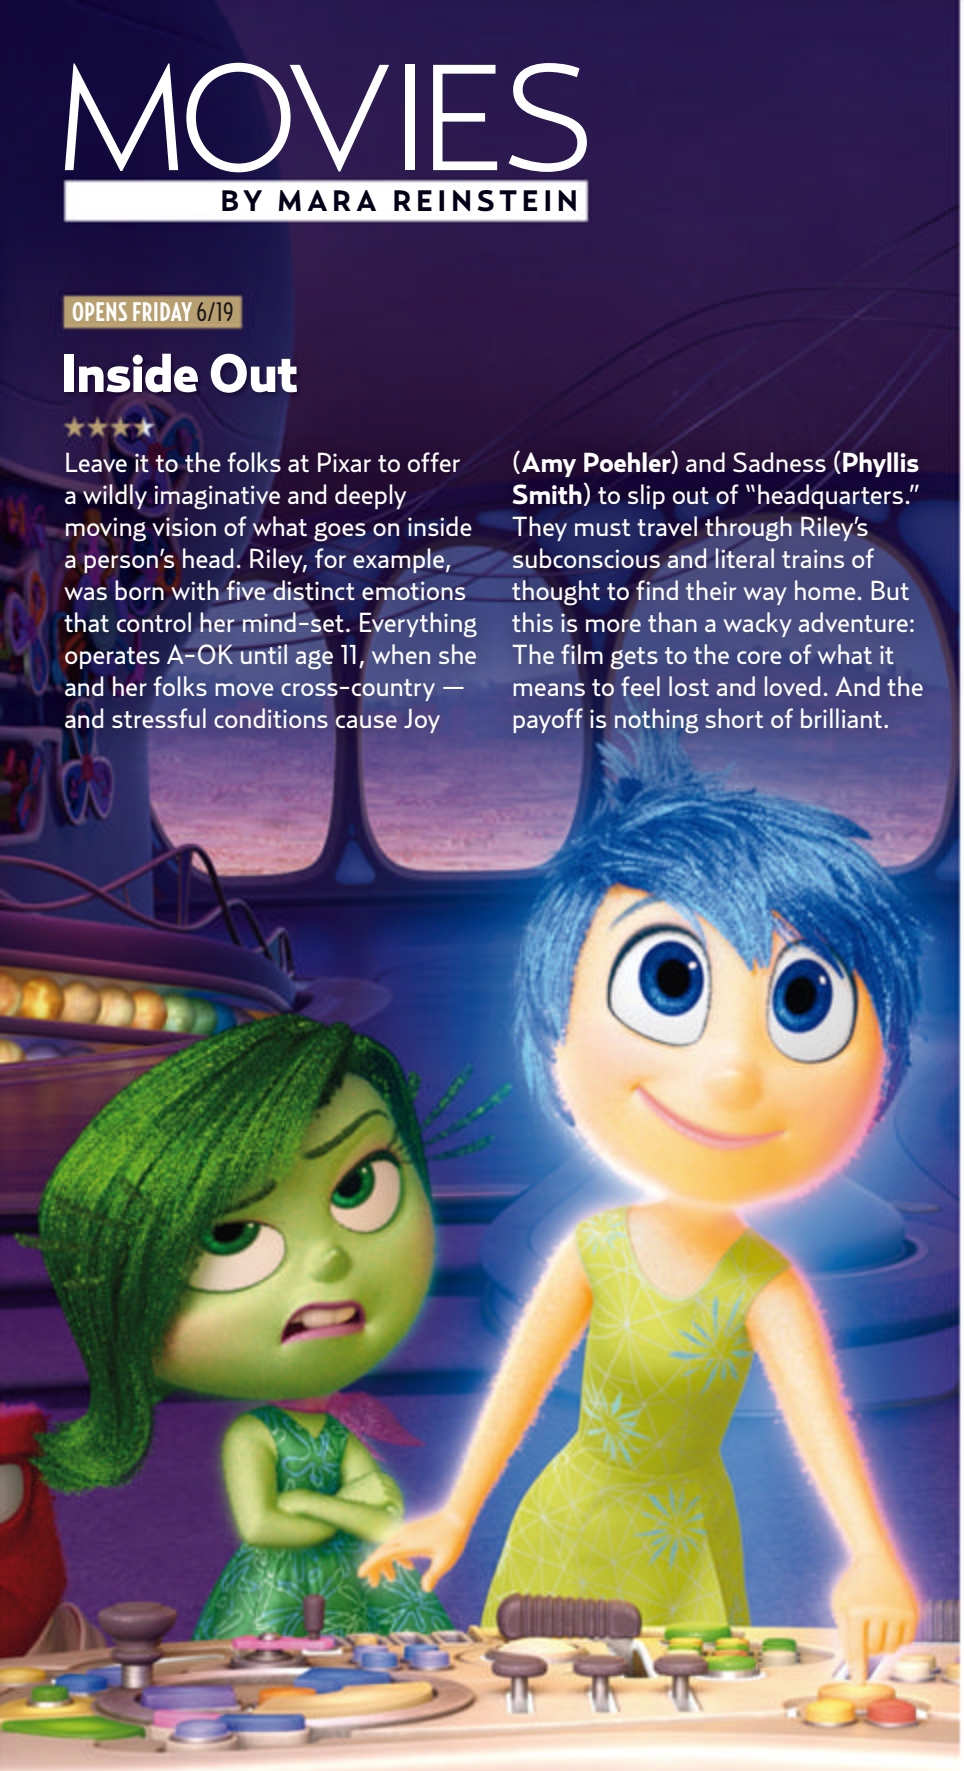
Leave it to the folks at Pixar to offer a wildly imaginative and deeply moving vision of what goes on inside a person's head. Riley, for example, was born with five distinct emotions that control her mind-set. Everything operates A-OK until age 11, when she and her folks move cross-country — and stressful conditions cause Joy (Amy Poehler) and Sadness (Phyllis Smith) to slip out of "headquarters." They must travel through Riley's subconscious and literal trains of thought to find their way home. But this is more than a wacky adventure: The film gets to the core of what it means to feel lost and loved. And the payoff is nothing short of brilliant.



Poehler (right) doesn't want Disgust (Mindy Kaling) at the brain controls.

INDIE WATCH!

OPENS FRIDAY 6/19

Dope

OPENS FRIDAY 6/19

The Overnight

Secrets are revealed and sexual insecurities are on display in this delightfully quirky comedy. It starts innocently, as a couple (Adam Scott and Taylor Schilling, above) stop by the home of the parents of their son's new friend for dinner. After the kids go to bed, the adults get personal. It's an insightful take on marriage, and, at 80 minutes, doesn't outstay its welcome.

NEW ON VIDEO

Jeff Perry (with Washington) is conned by a hooker.

Scandal
Season 4

★★★½

The twists in this round of the audacious Washington, D.C.–set drama are more OMG than ever. Masked men kidnap crisis manager (and on-off POTUS mistress) Olivia Pope (Kerry Washington) in one showy plot. More tantalizing: First lady Mellie Grant (Bellamy Young), running for Senate with help from a cunning adviser (Portia de Rossi, on point), causes a mass murder. Lena Dunham guest-starring as a blackmailing author is just icing on the crazy cake. (Netflix, all 22 episodes available) JOHN GRIFFITHS

Seyfried takes Watts to a hip-hop dance class.

While We're Young

Many films examine the perils of getting older; this underrated comedy nails it. Ben Stiller and Naomi Watts play a childless, yuppie Brooklyn couple keenly aware of their place in the age food chain. No wonder they gravitate to married hipsters (Amanda Seyfried, Adam Driver) 20 years their junior. Writer-director Noah Baumbach, in classic Woody Allen style, relies on astute, relatable observations for laughs. (Amazon and iTunes, $13–$15) MR

Hilary Duff is now a 27-year-old divorced mom. So why, in the name of Lizzie McGuire, is she still warbling the same vacuous tween pop in her first album since 2007? Granted, she digs into her split from Mike Comrie ("Why you think you can play me?" she pleads on the self-penned stormer "Lies").
